

Gardabhī-vipita, or Gardabhī-vibhita, is the name of a teacher who was a Bhāradvāja and a contemporary of Janaka, mentioned in the Bṛhadāraṇyaka Upaniṣad.

<sup>1</sup> iv. 1, 11 (Mādhyamīna=iv. 1, 5 Kāṇva).

Garmut is the name of a kind of wild bean mentioned in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā.<sup>1</sup> The Kāthaka Saṃhitā<sup>2</sup> has the form Ganmut, which is probably a false reading. The adjective gārmuta, 'made from the Garmut bean,' is found in the Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> ii. 4, 4, 1. 2.

<sup>3</sup> ii. 2, 4.

Cf. St. Petersburg Dictionary, s.v.; Zimmer, Altindisches Leben, 71.

Galūnasa Ārksākāyaṇa ('descendant of R̥ksāka') is mentioned as a teacher in the Jaiminīya Upaniṣad Brāhmaṇa (i. 38, 4).

<sup>2</sup> Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā, iii. 14, 10; Kāthaka Saṃhitā, xvi. 17; Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā, xxiv. 28; Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, ii. 8; iii. 34; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, i. 2, 3, 9; Śāṅkhāyana Śrauta Sūtra, xvi. 3, 14, etc.

<sup>4</sup> xiii. 49; Taittirīya Saṃhitā, iv. 2, 10, 3; Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā, ii. 7, 17; Kāthaka Saṃhitā, xvi. 17.

Cf. Zimmer, Altindisches Leben, 83, 84.
